

YASSAS FROM ATHENS

POSTCARD FROM GREECE

“A Month Past Comfort” – It has been ONE month since I stepped onto the plane heading for Athens, and it has been quite the eventful 30 days. I’ve learned that getting out of one’s comfort zone isn’t always about trying something brand new; it could very well be stepping back into something you know all too well. It’s no secret I took a short break from living overseas, but I knew Greece was meant to be the country I first returned to... so here I am! This trip has truly been the divine timing of God.

Over the last few weeks, I have been involved with teaching midweek services, singing/playing piano with the music team, supporting the work of the youth committee and MITs (ministers in training), going behind-the-scenes to assist with church administration, as well as experiencing adventurous outings with the previous AIMers and POA young people. I got here just in time for the hottest part of the year – but the views and food are beyond amazing even in the heat!

Athens is such a biblically and historically important city – Read the New Testament or any book about Greek history. It was in Athens that Apostle Paul addressed the crowd about the altar’s inscription, “To the unknown god” (Acts 17:23). Just as Paul preached the One, True, Living God; the Pentecostals of Athens is carrying the mission forward to reach this city! I’m so blessed to be a part of the POA for this season!
