Field Notes

November and December have flown by with immense speed! I cannot even believe we are in a new year! Now that the holidays have settled, I am pleased to be writing to you! In November, I had the privilege of hosting a "friends-giving" with connections that I had made in college. This gathering blessed and touched so many souls. Further connections were made with friends, which led to discussions of the truth popping up many times a week! My friend group now discusses Biblical questions whenever they come to mind. This carried over into December and led to another friend attending church, one who comes about once a month. More biblical discussions took place as my friends wondered about the meaning of Christmas and what I really believe. I have now been asked to pray for friends as needs arise and over exams as we enter into finals season.

Personal Notes

As I have went through busy holiday season I have been in awe of what the Lord has been doing among my friends and in my personal life. I have seen the fruits of the Bible studies that I remember taking when I first came into this wonderful truth as I relay it to my friends. I thank God for the spirit of remembrance as I pull from scripture and even as the Lord gives me words to speak and to answer questions that my friends ask. I am honored to be in this position every single day and am excited to see what the new year will bring.

with gratitude, Amber Ward
