

AIM in Brazil

IBA (BIBLE SCHOOL)

In August, they started IBA, which is a Bible school at the church. They have classes every Saturday, and I help out by running the camera for their YouTube page. I really enjoy sitting in and listening to the classes. It's a great way to learn more Portuguese, and it's also a great way to learn more about the Bible because you can never learn enough!

WOMENS BIBLE STUDY

A few weeks ago, I was asked to teach a women's Bible study over a Zoom call. I was so blessed to have this opportunity to speak to the ladies about the call of God. I focused on three points: being patient with God's call, not being afraid to answer His call, and answering God's call. The ladies really enjoyed the study and asked some great questions afterward. One question in particular stuck out to me. A lady asked how I knew that being in Brazil was the call of God and not just my own mind telling me to come here. It was a special question to receive because it gave me the opportunity to share how God has led me to where I am today.

OPORTUNIDADE

The day before I taught the women's Bible study, I was asked to give a 10-minute oportunidade at church. I'm thankful for these opportunities because they push me out of my comfort zone and allow me to grow. I spoke about the song "I Will Walk This Road" by Brittani Scott. At the end, I shared my main point and left everyone with a question: "What can you do to be more like Jesus?" I believe the message really touched some people. I also shared that there are some things I would like to start back in my hometown that I have learned from the church here in Brazil. A couple of weeks later, this led to a conversation with the pastor about some of these ideas. I'm thankful for the things God has allowed me to learn while I've been here and excited to see how I can take what I've learned and use it when I return home.

HELPING AT ANOTHER CHURCH

My roommate and I were asked to help out at another church one Sunday night. We were asked to help with the music, so I played the piano while she sang. We also introduced ourselves and shared a little bit about why and how we came to Brazil. It was a very small church with only a few people, and they didn't have a music setup, so they used audio for the worship music. Even though the church was small, it was so fulfilling to see God move in that church that night. It reminded me that it doesn't matter how big or small a church is—God can still move and touch people.

Wow, this month has been crazy! We had some problems in our apartment that led to us having to move out and stay somewhere else for a week. Then we moved into the Andersons' home to housesit while they are gone. It has been a lot of moving, but it has also been a nice change of scenery for a while. We even got to explore some new places, which was a plus!

But all of that aside, it has been an amazing month filled with so many opportunities and blessings. It's crazy to think that I only have about two months left before I go home. The people here have truly made me feel like family and have made me feel like I belong. I'm so thankful for everything God has allowed me to experience here and for all the people He has placed in my life.

I pray every day that God allows me to be used as much as He can for the remainder of my stay, and I'm excited to see what other blessings He has in store over the next couple of months. Please continue to pray for the Andersons, the Mooca church, Pastor Ronilson and his family, and the country of Brazil.
